

living here
i am surrounded by death
that I never see.
perhaps it is the street sweeper sonata
cleaning them from the sidewalks like there never was a problem and death never really took hold.
in the end it was
just somebody remaking the beds that swallow configurations of pain.

at the hospital.
wf.h.
1978