

he said

do not think i am crazy.
i went to my icon filled church today.
kneeling before the altar i looked up and saw god yawning.
surrounded by a circling radiance of light he said i am tired of all these harsh spiritual questions that include or hint at a why.
you are in my house now
and these questions
do not show the proper respect.
if you need to ask
go outside and look the other way
with your beseeching.
the crows can always use a good laugh
to get them through their day.
crow instinct tells them
that they did not get an enviable job but it was the only one offered and they needed the work.
do you really want to tell me
that you are unhappy
with yours.
we could change things
crows always need
more to eat.

do not think i am crazy.
