

problems divide us from each other with each of us on the other side
of the impending division.
the problem is that the outcome cannot be divided to stay historically true because time passes
during the calculation.
we are embedded
in the problems of parts.
the oneness we share is in the structure of division which we call duality.
duality tearing apart oneness.
greater good and lesser evil.
greater evil and lesser good.
darkness and light.
name anything and it is what it is not.
someone said that mathematics
was the language of the universe and that could be true
but it only has one sentence...
care to join me in this strange tango.

problems divide us.
